Defence in a statement to the Associated Press to-day, denied wide spread newspaper reports that Germany was fostering a secret army, utilizing her factories for war purposes, and evading the disarmament clauses of the Versailles Treaty generally in preparation for another war. "Germany is not threatening the peace of the world. She is in no condition to be a danger" says the statement.

BANK IN MONTREAL RAIDED IN DAYLIGHT

Manager Fires at Hold-up Man, Who Shoots in Return

An attempted hold-up of the branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at the corner of Park Avenue and Prince Arthur street at 12.55 o'clock noon Oct. 25th resulted in a wild exchange of shots between a lone robber and employees of the bank, says The Montreal Star.

The nerve of Manager J. E. Carnegie prevented what might have developed into a serious robbery. The bank lost no money during the attempted hold-up. The bank teller, George Drew, fainted after the melee. Although three men were in the gang which tried to rob the branch, only one robber actually participated in the robbery and the subsequent gun-battle. At 12.50 a young man walked into the office. In his hand he had a $10 bill. Walking up to the teller's cage he laid the bill on the counter and asked for change in one dollar bills. Teller Drew, noticing nothing suspicious in the attitude of the young man, turned to secure the desired number of bank notes. No sooner was his back turned than he heard a commanding voice behind him: "Hands up!"

Turning he saw a revolver in the stranger's hand. He threw up his hands. Manager J. E. Carnegie, whose office was close at hand, heard the few words that had passed between the two and the hard voice of the robber as he ordered the clerk's hands up. He stepped to the door of his office, a revolver in his hand.

Fires and Earthquakes

WEEHAWKIN, N.J., Nov. 3.—Two piers of the Erie Railroad, heavily loaded with freight, were destroyed, and the surrounding property considerably damaged, in a fire which swept words that had passed between the two and the hard voice of the robber as he ordered the clerk's hands up. He stepped to the door of his office, a revolver in his hand.

EXPERT TELLS OF WORRYING PROBLEMS OF MARKETING

dent Coaker's foresight and wisdom, been an improvement in the cure. We feel sure that fishermen need only some encouragement, to cure fish better. The cause of past bad cure was the merchants' own indifference and stupidity. There was no encouragement for fishermen to cure well—and the man who did cure well had to pay for the man who did not. These will be further improvement in cure. After all, we are producing an article of food, and the people who consume that food are not all the same people, or even the same race. They have different tastes and likes. What will suit one will never suit the other. They have to eat the fish, and if anybody knows what they want, they are the ones. And when they ask for a certain cure, we must give it them, or they won't pay as much for it. We must so perfect the cure, and so grade and cull our product, that we can ship to each market only the exact kind that that market wants and likes.

These are two things which will, however, with a little common sense and encouragement, take care of themselves. They are important, and when remedied will enhance and improve the price of the product.

Coal Fields Idle

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—Practically every mine in the India coal fields was idle to-day, owing to a strike in protest against the injunction prohibiting the use of the check system of collecting union dues and assessments.

"Lenora Silver" Lost

PRINCETOWN, Mass., Nov. 3.—The fishing schooner Lenora Silver of Boston, was wrecked on Peaked Hill Bars to-day and one of the crew, Edward Meuse, was drowned. Captain Lawrence Lawlor and the other seventeen men were brought ashore in a breeches buoy. The schooner was bound to Boston, and in fifty mile gales when driven ashore.

LATEST.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Lloyd George still hopes to go to Washington to take the leadership of the British delegation to the Disarmament Conference. Austen Chamberlain announced in the House to-day.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Parliament to-day discussed resolution by John Clynes, Laborite, "That this House warmly approves meeting of international conference at Washington and trusts supreme effort will be made to arrive at agreement which will secure substantial and progressive reduction of crush burden of armaments."

WEEHAWKIN, N.J., Nov. 4.—Five piers heavily loaded with freight, large flour warehouse, thirty loaded barges and thirty loaded freight cars and five oil tanks, in Erie Railroad's waterfront yards, were destroyed by fire, early to-day, the loss being over $1,000,000.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—Admiral Beatty is so popular in the United States, that Kansas city policemen and other uniformed men, are now wearing their caps over the right eye, said R. B. Maxwell, American delegate to recent American Legion Convention.

less for it than can be gotten? Is it the procedure of a man with a mind that is straight, and not crooked? Would anybody but a madman spend his summer catching fish, only to dispose of it when all is over for any sum that is less than the sum he could get?

Do you remember, fishermen, what we said at the beginning of this article? Do you remember what we said yesterday? We said that the fishermen of Newfoundland are living out of the money that they get for the fish they catch—that they are depending for a living for themselves and family on what they get for the product of their toil—in other words, the commodity they handle, fish. That is what we said. A perfectly plain statement, isn't it? Nothing highfalutin about it? Anybody can understand it, eh?

Wait! Everybody does not understand it. Far from everybody. The fishermen understand it. Oh, they understand it, all right. They're the men directly concerned. It is their pockets that are directly concerned. It is their stomachs, and the stomachs of their children, that are concerned. They understand that statement, sure enough, and understand it to their pain.

What a petty subject to be dealing with in a newspaper, eh? Trivial, petty subject, eh? Fit for children to interest themselves in, eh?

Would to God that it were so!

Would that Newfoundland was advanced to that position where it was not necessary to discuss this subject! Would that there was no need for Newfoundland to be discussing, in the year of grace 1921, the subject of getting enough out of the products of her soil to live decently! But it is not so. We are, sad to say, in exactly that position.

The higher critics and "literary" highbrows of other newspapers can content themselves with discussion of such wonderful, important subjects as petty politics, reformatories, foreign subjects, etc. They don't need to worry over the subject of getting the best price for fish. They don't have to descend to the level of wondering how to improve the fish industry of this country. They need not discuss or write or talk about how to market our fish better. They are well fixed, thank you. They manage very well, if you please. Life returns them a very good time. As for worrying about the dirty, low-down fishermen—pshaw! They never discuss fish, except when they sneer at someone who is doing his best to improve things. How splendid they are at that! With what eloquence they indulge their cheap sarcasm and cynicism! How they try to belittle the efforts of real men—how they misrepresent and lie about such efforts! To their pain the fishermen know these facts.

Spurred Class
Well, the fishermen are a spurred class. They are outcasts and pariahs. They are the hewers of wood and drawers of water. They are placed there to do the dirty work of Newfoundland, and to support in comfort and cleanliness those who sneer at them and hold their noses when they

CARD!

TO THE

CITIZENS of the ST. JOHN'S MUNICIPALITY

Ladies and Gentlemen,—
Having been interviewed by a large number of citizens at different times, as to my intentions in the forthcoming Municipal Election, I beg to say that after due consideration, I have decided to be nominated for the office of Mayor.

The duties of the office require health, leisure and experience, and these qualifications I have and am willing to devote them to the welfare of the City. To speak of anything like an elaborate policy would be a mistake and a deception, as the financial state of the Municipality does not warrant any great expenditure, but as far as may be feasible I promise, if elected, to do my best for the City, and at the same time to exercise due economy.

I have no campaign to make, nor literature to distribute, nor any photographs to exhibit; hence I do not require any committee. With the public I leave the result and shall be fully satisfied to abide by their decision.

Respectfully submitted,

I. C. MORRIS.

The Reward of Those Who Play Square

CHAPTER XVII.

An Astonishing Declaration.

Jack balanced his chair and stretched to the table for a letter.

"Here's a note from Moses; he'll buy the other picture, 'The Silver Stream.'"

"Not!" exclaimed Cyril.

"Yes; and give you what you ask, but on conditions."

"Oh!"

Jack smiled.

"Oh, they are not hard ones. It seems that Lord Newall has taken a fancy to it."

Cyril opened his eyes and nodded. Lord Newall was a well known patron of art, and his approval set the sign manual upon a picture, and the painter who obtained his lordship's good word might regard himself as made; the public in all things artistic is like a flock of sheep, and must have its bell-wether. Lord Newall had but to set the lead, and the sheep followed.

"By Jove!" muttered Cyril. "So Lord Newall fancied 'The Silver Stream.' Well, I thought there might be something in it."

Jack Webster smiled.

"Very nicely put. Go to, young man; your modesty is thrown away in this shop! Yes, he has bought the picture on condition that you paint another for him."

Cyril started and laughed. "If everyone made that condition, Jack, I should be a millionaire."

Jack nodded.

"Yes, it sounds rather insane, doesn't it? But there's reason in his madness. He wants you to paint a bit of the seashore outside his place in Brittany."

"In Brittany?" echoed Cyril, and his face fell.

Jack looked hard at him.

"What is your objection to Brittany, my friend?" he asked.

"That it's not in England," replied Cyril, thoughtfully.

"That's more Brittany's misfortune than its fault, and you can scarcely expect Lord Newall to move it over here; or do you expect it?"

Cyril sat astride a chair in front of Jack's, and leaned his chin on his arms.

"In Brittany," he repeated. "How long will it take me?"

"Not being an artist—thank merciful Heaven!—can't say," replied Jack. "What on earth can it matter to you how long it takes you?"

"It does matter," said Cyril gravely. Jack Wesley, shrugged his shoulders.

"When Fortune came and smiled, he said 'Begone, you hag.'"

Cyril rose and began to pace the room. To leave Santleigh and go to Brittany; to leave Norah for weeks, perhaps months!

Jack Wesley watched him gravely.

"What ails you, man?" he said. "But hear me out. It is not only the money—and I suppose that is not wholly a matter of indifference to you?"

Cyril stopped a moment to murmur. "Don't be angry with me, Jack!" and resumed his pacing.

"I'm not angry; only surprised. I thought you would fling up your hat, order round champagne, and behave yourself in your usual impetuous fashion when luck comes your way. But to proceed. It is not only the money, though that is a fair sum enough, but there is something else hanging to it; the something you and I are always clamoring and whining for—Fame."

Cyril stopped suddenly. Newall wants you to paint this other picture and make it a companion to 'The Silver Stream,' and he intends calling it 'The Golden Sands.' Original idea, isn't it?" and he laughed cynically. "But it's the sort of thing the public like. And he means to exhibit them in the new gallery he and his fellow cranks—I beg his pardon, connoisseurs—are getting up. See?"

"Yes."

"I'm glad you do. A word from Newall, the mere fact that he has taken you in hand and bought your pictures, will make you. Cyril Burns will be the artist of the coming season, and—"

He laughed.

Cyril came over to him and put his hands on the broad shoulders. "Jack," he said, quietly enough, but with a tremor in his voice, "it is you who have worked this."

Jack Wesley colored and fidgeted. "Bah!" he said "I—I merely suggested it to Newall."

"I know it!" said Cyril. "And what must you think of me when you see me hesitating? But, Jack—no I'm not going to thank you! Sit still—but, Jack, if you knew all!"

Jack Wesley stretched for his pipe and lit it.

"Go on," he said, resignedly. "It was Disraeli who said that 'adventures were to the adventurous,' and I never knew a man more adventurous than yourself. What have you been doing now?"

"Jack," said Cyril, coloring a little, but speaking almost gravely, "I've seen her."

"Allow me to remark my dear Cyril, that 'her' is rather indefinite. Oh, I beg your pardon; I remember! You are alluding to the young lady whom you saw going in at the park gates at Santleigh, and whose voice you mistook for mine on the terrace that night. George! It's a mercy we weren't shot. I expect I shall find myself landed some day with six months' hard labor as a penalty for being in bad company, yours, to wit. But the young lady. You've seen her, you say? I suppose you have hung about the ducal—was the swell a duke or an earl? Oh, I remember, an earl; Lord Arrowdale—I suppose you have lain in wait for the lady, or did you serenade her in the troubadour fashion? You would make a capital troubadour, Cyril. I often think that the stage has lost an ornament in you; yours is just the figure for the typical melodramatic lover, and your voice—but I beg your pardon, you are dying to tell me all about the latest goddess. How many times have you been in love Cyril?"

Cyril knew that a deep interest underlay all this banter and bore it good humoredly.

"Yes, you are right, Jack," he said; "I am in love. I told you so the night you left Santleigh, and I spoke the truth."

He got up and resumed his pacing, and Jack Wesley threw him the tobacco pouch.

"Have the goodness to smoke," he said, "then you'll sit down, perhaps. I don't wish to appear inhospitable, but I should like to remark that my carpets won't stand much of that promenading."

Cyril lit his pipe and threw himself into a chair.

"Jack, you may laugh at me," he said. "I fought hard against it after you left, but it was no use. I went into the woods the next day to work—honestly—but I thought of her at the time, and lo and behold! she came."

"Mesmeric influence," muttered Jack Wesley, cynically.

"Before she appeared, a fellow, a Mr. Berton, had ridden up and warned me off, none too pleasantly, for trespassing, and we were in the middle of a row. I think he wanted to strike me badly; he's got a bad temper, poor man! She appeared—"

"Like an angel with a harp and an olive branch, typical of the peace-maker? Go on; I'll use it for my next story."

"The man went and—and I got her—Heaven knows how!—to stop. I—I put the dog she had with her into

No Appetite

Nervous exhaustion leads to distaste for food. The nerves of the stomach are weak, digestion fails and you become generally upset and out of sorts.

The secret of complete restoration is in getting the nervous system fully built up.

Mrs. R. Cheney, 208 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with indigestion, which caused me many sleepless nights. I would be in terrible distress at times, and would get no relief for two or three hours. For sixteen months I ate nothing but Shredded Wheat biscuits, as I dare not eat anything else. I did not know what to do, as I had tried so many different remedies, as well as doctors' medicines, without gaining permanent relief. Finally I got some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and while on the second box noticed that I was improving. I continued the treatment until I am now fully restored, and have returned to my regular diet. My husband has also taken Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results; so we are glad to recommend it to others."

ST. THOMAS'S W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of St. Thomas's Women's Home Missionary Society, which took place on Wednesday afternoon last, was one of the most successful in its history. The President, Mrs. J. C. Oke, took the chair at 3.15 and about 160 members and their friends attended the meeting. The Rector, Rev. E. C. Earp, and Mrs. Earp paid their first visit to the Missionary Society and the Rector addressed the meeting, speaking words of great encouragement and inspiration, and assuring the Society of his entire agreement with the policy it had adopted towards the assistance of Rev. Henry Gordon's work at Cartwright, Labrador. Rev. Canon Smart, Chairman of the Diocesan Board of Missions, who was also present, at the request of the President, also spoke, and predicted a good year's work despite "hard times." Mrs. J. Farndale and Miss Doris Withers, very kindly contributed songs to the program, and the accompanist was Miss Myrtis Williams. At the conclusion of the meeting the gathering repaired to the ground floor of Canon Wood Hall, where the members of the W.H.M.S. Executive, served tea and conducted the sale of several articles of native work sent by Mr. Gordon from Labrador. Much enthusiasm was exhibited and the stall was a great financial success.

AT THE CITY HALL

The weekly meeting of the Council was held last evening at the City Hall. Mayor Morris presided and Councillors Vinicombe, Peet, Collier and Hallett were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The following matters were then discussed.

M. H. Kitchen asked that a light be placed on the Topsall Road. As the locality in question is at the boundary of the city limits, the Council is quite willing to have the light erected and the Department of Public Works will be asked to contribute half cost of upkeep.

A communication was read from the Newfoundland Motor Association stating they intend inaugurating a "Safety First" campaign, details of which will be outlined later. They also requested that the Council erect danger signs, such as are used in other countries at such places as schools, cross roads, etc. The Council has had this matter under consideration for some time past, and has already decided upon such erections.

Hugh Bishop, Mundy Pond Road, wrote, stating that owing to the road being closed for several days he was prevented from using his motor car, which affected his business. He asked compensation to the amount of $62.00 for loss of work. The matter is to be referred to the Solicitor.

The Electrical Department, Reid Nid. Company, informed the Board that the lights recently ordered would be installed as early as possible.

Tessier & Co. complained of the service in the watering of shipping, stating that, owing to there not being sufficient hose, they were obliged to move their vessel to another wharf to obtain a supply. The waterman has, in all such cases, done his best to satisfy applicants, and owners of shipping should moor their vessels at such premises where water supply can be more readily obtained.

Geo. Williams, Bond Street, stated he was caused inconvenience and annoyance by the parking of the steam roller near his dwelling, and contended that his house, which was newly painted, had been blackened by smoke from same. The Engineer reported that the work on Bond St. was now completed and the roller was moved to another locality.

Mr. J. Crawford asked that attention be given the drains and sidewalks on the north side of Topsall Road. This is receiving attention.

A lengthy communication was read from the St. John's Gaslight Company following the decision of the Council to eliminate all gas lamps in the city, asking reconsideration of this decision, particularly in view of the present efforts of the Company to give satisfaction to their customers. The Council considers the price for the upkeep of these lamps rather high, and the Company are to be asked to make some reduction in the amount at present paid.

Mr. E. Collishaw wrote in connection with the scheme for bettering of present housing conditions in the city, stating he was willing to form a Building and Loan Company for the erection of some thirty or more houses if the Council in return were prepared to carry out the sections of the Municipal Act, 1921, with regard to Building Societies. The matter was given careful consideration, but, before a definite decision can be arrived at, the City Solicitor will be asked as to the Council's position in relation thereto.

The following plans were submitted to the Board: West End Lumber Co. (extension to office), referred to the City Engineer; Jos. P. Moore, (stable) rear dwelling Hamilton Avenue, referred to the Health Officer; S. & E. Soper, to erect building on Pennywell Road, was deferred for consideration. Nathan Pond applied for water and sewerage extension on Mundy Pond Road. Council will accede to his request provided he gives guarantee to pay his proportion of the cost for these improvements.

Tenders were received for ash slides. As those of Messrs. T. J. Nash, O'Keefe and Lawrence were equal, it was decided they be awarded one slide each.

The tenders for the supply of lead pipe were deferred for consideration.

During the week representatives of the Newfoundland "Ritz Hotel" Company waited upon the Council. This Company proposes to erect an up-to-date hotel in the city, which, it is understood, will cost approximately $1,000,000, including equipment, and will contain two hundred rooms. For some time past the lack of proper hotel accommodation has been a great drawback both to the city and the country in general, and it was considered that the promoters of the new Company should be encouraged in every possible way to successfully accomplish their project. The representatives asked that certain concessions be granted them, such as exemption from taxation for a certain period of years. Under the Act the Council has not the power to accede to their request but it was thought the future Council should be in a position to deal with such matters, and, with this in view, legislation will be sought, whereby the Council will be

OUR HEAVY FISH EXPORT

The Daily News wants to emphasize the fact that the exports of codfish for October amounted to 307,983 quintals as against 149,772 quintals for the corresponding period of last year.

The News says that the increase over last year is due to the regulations; and the News is right.

If the fishery regulations were in operation October shipments would certainly not amount to 307,983 quintals, unless that quantity was sold outright and at a high price, and paid for before the cargoes sailed.

The News knows that the vast quantities of codfish sent to Europe have not been sold outright or have not been paid for; and must also know that months will elapse before account sales are rendered for most of the September and October shipments, which, roughly, may represent half of the fish that this season the toilers have dragged from the seas.

Last year's shipments were paid for before cargoes sailed and the market supply was so regulated that the highest possible prices were obtained; the result being that the fishermen received good prices locally and were enabled to live.

The merchants, having a free hand are committing suicide this year by dumping half the whole catch in the market unsold in two months; the result being that the fishermen are getting starvation prices, and that perhaps in six months from now the foreign fish dealers, who have the fishermen's fish in their grasp, will remit "sacrifice" prices to the trade for fish that has rotted in their stores.

There is no earthly reason why prices to the fishermen should not be better than last year, if we had a sane policy for exportation of our staple product. Because there is now no such policy, merchants are sacrificing the fishermen's interests by dumping such enormous quantities into the hands of foreigners to whose interests it was to fight against and intrigue with local political desperadoes to smash the regulations.

Well, the fishermen are paying, heaven knows. It is only sufficient to visit the wharves to know to what state the whole system has degenerated; or to hear the appalling stories of the poor fishermen who have been fleeced of their winter's livelihood by the very creatures who smashed the regulations and who, when confronted with their rogues, retorted "It was the fishermen's year last year; it is our turn this year."

When the News delights in present circumstances, the fishermen are in distress, in many cases, facing a winter of want and privation, when a few extra dollars on their fish would have meant comfort to them.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT FROM PORT UNION

We understand that the steamer which arrived at Port Union but a few days ago to load fish is ready for market. This is another proof of the splendid facilities at Port Union for unloading and loading any kind of goods. It is expected that Mr. Charles Bryant will go over on the steamer.

Evangelist Rights Slur On Mrs. Hylan

"Gipsy" Smith Apologizes to Wife of New York's Mayor.

(New York Times)

"Gipsy" Smith, the well-known Scotch evangelist, made a public apology, which was sent to the newspapers yesterday, to atone for his act in repeating a false story that Mrs. John F. Hylan had uttered the words, "You said a mouthful, Queen," to the Queen of the Belgians, or had used any other phraseology in conversation with any other visiting celebrity.

This tale, which has had a wide whispering currency, is a "malignant and cruel falsehood," against a cultured woman, according to the evangelist, who made his retraction and apology in the Hanson Place M. E. Church in Brooklyn on Thursday night.

THE ADVOCATE is a widely circulated newspaper and is therefore a most profitable advertising medium.

EXPERT TELLS OF WORRYING PROBLEMS OF MARKETING

Profitable Disposal of Products Is a Task Common To Whole World Producers of Any Article Entitled To All That Human Ingenuity Can Obtain For That Article

Who Sapiro Is And What He's Talking About

These articles are part of a speech delivered to Kentucky tobacco growers by Aaron Sapiro on the subject of cooperative marketing of their tobacco, so that they could get the most for their product possible. Sapiro is the world's greatest authority in cooperative marketing, being the founder of the movement in California. He is telling the story of cooperative marketing there, and almost every word of it could be applied to Newfoundland's fish industry. The producers out there were poor until they evolved the cooperative method of marketing their produce. Follow up these articles—they are highly informative and interesting.

COMMENT ON SAPIRO'S SPEECH.

The beginning of Sapiro's speech was given in the Advocate yesterday. That, with today's installment, constitutes more of an introduction to his real subject than anything else. These articles will run for several days—perhaps over a week. It is therefore important and advisable to read the introduction, so as to be familiar with what follows.

Now, in commenting on his remarks yesterday, we outlined one or two clear facts. These facts may be very simple, but they are very much connected with the general subject, and are therefore well remembered.

We found that, while Sapiro in his speech dealt with fruit, farm produce and tobacco, his remarks applied forcibly to fish—because they are all commodities. They are all commodities which are produced by the labor or care of men. That is something that they all have in common. There are men who are engaged in producing those commodities, and those men are engaged at such production for the one and only purpose of gaining a living therefrom, both for themselves and their wives and children. Otherwise, of course, they could go and lie down and take things easy. But, because men are men, and must eat and wear clothes and live in houses, and have more or less comfort and recreation, they must labor. For, you see, it is in labor that they earn the money which buys these things.

And, of course, the thing that they labor at is the thing that has to give them their living. Therefore, it is imperative that they get from that thing—that commodity—the very most that can be gotten.

What We Found.

Those are things that we found yesterday. We also found that while this statement applies with much force to the fishermen in Newfoundland, it also applied with equal force to producers all the wide world over. Not only fishermen, but wheat growers, wool growers, farm produce growers, tobacco growers, and all other producers—have to face this same problem. They, also, have to solve the problem of getting for their products the most that it is possible to get. It is by the money that they get for those products that they live, and the standard of their living is therefore determined by the amount they get for their products.

Now, these are the very simplest of statements, and we do not suppose that anyone will deny their accuracy. They constitute the first fundamental of living, and while they could be elaborated and gone into more fully, they are plain enough as they stand.

This, then, is the subject with which Aaron Sapiro, world's foremost exponent of and authority on cooperative marketing, is dealing.

The problem of getting a decent living out of the product of their labor, just as this is the problem which harrasses Newfoundland fishermen, was also the problem which faced the producers in the now rich state of California. As Sapiro tells, they were poor and in poverty. Mind you, they could produce then practically as well as they do now—but all the same they were in poverty. No matter how hard they worked and slaved, they always seemed to come out through the small end of the horn, exactly as the fishermen have been coming out through the small end here. And so those producers got down to hard pan, and began to do some tall thinking. They met and studied the subject from one angle after another, and tried one cure after another. And, as Sapiro tells, one plan after another failed. At last, however, they hit on the cure,—and although Sapiro does not say so himself, he was the prime mover in that cure.

They said to themselves: "Now, here we are, a bunch of producers. We have good land and we know how to produce. And yet we are in poverty. That is because we are not getting enough for our products. And why are we not getting enough for our products? Because we do not market them

MR. SAPIRO'S SPEECH CONTINUED FROM YESTERDAY.

About the year 1900 the growers weren't simply making enough money out of raisins even to pay the cost of production. So, under the leadership of a man named Kearney they started to come together. They didn't have much vision, they didn't quite know how to do it. They didn't know the exact system. They knew that somewhere in Europe the growers had gotten together. They knew that in the southern part of the State the growers were trying to get together but had not yet struck the right system. They started little packing houses, trying to organize the industry on a localized basis. That blew up. They formed some arrangement with the High Five, and that blew up. They then arranged to deliver the stuff for packing to the High Five and sell some of it on a commission basis. That blew up.

Foreclosing on Mortgages.

So, for a series of years they experimented trying to find some way out. No matter what experiment they used, each year found the growers going behind. From 1900 to 1911 the crop every year left the whole group of growers practically poorer than they started. Some individual growers might have made money in one of these years but as a class they had a loss.

If you want the best commentary on the situation, go out and look up the records of Fresno and count the foreclosures of mortgages. You will find more mortgages on vineyards in one properly."

And so they founded the movement which has since spread to all parts of the world: cooperative marketing. That meant simply that instead of their acting as individuals, scattered and haphazard, they organized and cooperated in marketing their produce, and cut out competition and overlapping, and established a uniform cull and a uniform price.

The thing which Newfoundland fishermen should notice or not so much the exact form that those producers adopted, but the general principle which was embodied in that form. What was that? Simply cooperation; or, to be plainer, the cutting out of competition between themselves, the elimination of overlapping, etc., and the substitution of combination. Conditions in this country, while like those abroad, in outline, are different in detail, and while the same principles may be adopted, different application of them must be thought out.

The thing which Newfoundland fishermen must emphatically realize is that the reason why they do not get more for their fish is the faulty method of marketing that fish.

Of course, it is a fact that the present method of catching fish is not what it might be—we have been catching fish in more or less the same way, now, for a long, long time. As time goes on there will be improved methods in catching fish. Of course, we must not do this quicker than we provide sufficient markets to consume the additional catch.

It is also a fact that in the matter of cure we have not been just as careful as we might have been. There has, on account of Presisource of knowledge. The banker would have exactly the same tale. The High Five and the Low Five peddled it. The banker would mean to be friendly but, not knowing any better, he would always tell the same story. The motive always was to create the impression of a huge crop.

Effect on the Growers

By the end of March they would always have the growers around the district fairly well scared, and the growers would begin to think what they should do with their crops. Each fellow would have in his mind a picture of the other man who did actually feed his raisins to the hogs in some other year; he would also have a picture of the mortgage he had on his vineyard; he would also have a picture of the fact that a little money—even a loss—is better than no money at all.

The growers would begin to get worried. About the beginning of April these buyers would come around with sheets of regular contracts. The buyer knows the grower. He would say, "Now, Bill, we are buying raisins. We are going to buy a certain number and when we reach that amount the books close; we don't take another ounce, because we can't sell any more. We don't want to get stuck." Bill, interested, would say, "What is the price?" The answer would be, "Our price this year is 1 cent a pound." It will interest you to know that raisins sold as low as half a cent a pound during that period, from 1900 to 1911. The grower probably would say, "I can't produce raisins at that. The university people told us it cost somewhat between 2 and 3 cents to produce raisins, depending on whether we have cheap land or land more expensive. If I sell my raisins at 1 cent I lose money every time I raise a ton." The buyer would say, "Rosenberg is buying at a cent a pound, we can't offer than those fellows are getting raisins for. You had better sell at 1 cent a pound than to feed the crop to the hogs." It is the same situation you have in Kentucky today, the very thing.

Then the buyer should say, as the grower still hesitated, "I will tell you what to do. You think this over and I will come back next week, and you talk it over with your wife and your next door neighbor and see what to do. I don't want to urge you if you think it isn't right."

The Grower Weakens.

Right that week Bill leaned over the fence and talked to the next fellow. That is the almost universal story in the whole district. (This is not simply human interest, this is real fact. You ought to hear some of these growers tell of experiences year after year, the same story pulled right on the same man.) He would lean over the fence and talk to his neighbor. He would say, "I have just heard the same thing; my buyer was in today with a contract. He told me all he could offer was 1 cent a pound. He told me he was signing up hundreds and hundreds of tons in this very valley at 1 cent a pound. Maybe we had better take it."

Then they would go and talk to the wives. The wives would simply realize the children needed clothes, they would need something to eat, they would need to go to school. The wives would most likely vote to sell the stuff at some price rather than get stuck. They all had the picture before them of having the raisins fed to the hogs.

The buyer would come back in a week and go to Bill. He would say, "Are you ready to sell? I have a contract here ready for you." Bill would say, "I hate to sign it, I don't think it is square." The buyer would say something like this—it was done in two cases out of five in the whole district—"Bill, I will tell you. You give me your word of honor you won't say a word about this to your next door neighbor, for it will get me in Dutch if you do. I will give you a price of 1 1/4 cents if you will sign right now." Bill would break a leg to get his name on that contract at 1 1/4 cents a pound, because he would think he was getting a little more than his neighbor. Bill would sign that contract and take his loss and be relatively happy on it because he was putting something over on John Smith who lived next door. Probably the same stunt would be pulled on John Smith. He would likewise sign at 1 1/4 cents a pound because he thought he was putting it over on Bill, his neighbor. That used to be the great stunt of the buyer.

Gathering the Spoils.

May, June and July would come on and the raisins started to mellow. September would come and when the raisins were actually picked it would turn out that probably there was a crop of only 25,000 or 30,000 tons, and the raisins would then be sold to the broken at perhaps 6 or 7 or 8 cents a pound, and the brokers or the packers would make a huge fortune on the raisins and the growers would inevitably go backwords.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

MAKE PERFECT BREAD

AN IMPORTANT PRODUCT OF CANADA

Bread is the finest food on earth—the one food that everybody eats—that everybody likes and that everybody agrees with everybody.

Bread made in the home with Royal Yeast Cakes tastes better, keeps fresh longer, and is more nourishing than any other.

the littoral. I have seen samples of oats from Conception Bay raised from English seed imported by Sir Thomas Cochrane which fully equalled the parent growth; and other samples produced at the first meeting of the Agricultural Society, grown near St. John's, were as full and as heavy as any reared in Scotland. A Scotch farmer assured me that on his land about four miles westward of the city belonging, I believe, to Captain Prescott, he raised oats of the best quality and that the soil was well adapted to that grain."

The Rev. Moses Harvey said in a lecture delivered by him in the Athenaeum many years ago, "Are the fine agricultural districts to remain solitudes when our own people, and the people of other countries who are in need of bread would occupy them if they were made accessible, and transform them into smiling farms and make them the happy homes of men. Shall our people cling forever to the rocky shores, and content themselves with a precarious subsistence derived from the stormy deep. Shame on us if we don't rise to a nobler conception of our destiny as a people and utilize the gifts of a bountiful Providence."

The Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John's, Dr. Mullock, was a great admirer of all that pertained to the welfare of his adopted country. His Lordship said in relation to agriculture, "I have never seen finer barley than the growth of Newfoundland and all persons who have bought, as I have done, Newfoundland oats at nearly double the price of the husky grain imported here, will find that he has gained by his purchase. Hops are most luxuriant, and so are strawberries, currants, gooseberries and many other species of fruit. The hawthorn flourishes here when planted and I have seen as fine hedges of it laden with haws here as in the home country, and I mention this as a proof of the comparative mildness of our climate. For I find in Russia as far south as Moscow it is a hot house plant. My estimate then of the agricultural capabilities of Newfoundland comparing it with what I have seen in the north of Europe, is that if we had a large agricultural population we could support them in comfort and that as the population increases, we must attend more to the land, then more general wealth and comfort will be diffused a hundred fold than now when our population is, I may say, wholly maritime and we depend almost entirely on other countries for our food."

Cranes That Can Treat Tons Like Gunces.

There is something impressive about the big crane, that massive structure which forms the arm and fingers of industry. The reason may be that it saves such an enormous amount of human power. It will lift twenty tons through fifty feet in two minutes, whereas ten men would require two hours to perform the same work.

Some of our large engineering establishments contain electric overhead travelling cranes which will lift seventy-five tons with ease, and in well equipped foundries similar lifting machines have a capacity of eighty tons or more.

In the open air there are numerous powerful cranes on the cantilever principle, some of them capable of lifting one hundred tons. This is not the same thing as lifting an equal weight under cover, because in the case of all cranes working in exposed positions, wind pressure must be taken into account.

Champion Weight-Lifter.

The area of a comparatively light crane which may be thus affected may amount to more than 1,000 square feet, and the total pressure—reckoning thirty pounds to the square foot—to about fourteen tons.

In practice, however, wind pressure is calculated at about five pounds per square foot, and every member of the structural part of the crane is made to withstand five or six times its lifting capacity.

If, therefore, the wind pressure should happen to be much greater than five pounds per square foot, the crane will be safe.

Some cranes of the hammerhead type—so called because their general shape resembles that of a hammer—are also very powerful. One which is used for placing engines, boilers, etc., into ships after they are launched can lift one hundred and fifty tons to a height of as many feet, and there is a similar giant on a Clyde-side wharf.

Even more massive are the biggest floating cranes, some of which are capable of raising two hundred and fifty tons.

WEDDING BELLS

WHITE-POWERS

Less than two years ago one of Uncle Sam's fair daughters took passage by one of the ocean liners on purpose of visiting a sister relative in the quiet and picturesque little town of Avondale. The usual exhilarations of travel and our quaint sea-coast scenery, we presume, played their part on the tender emotions of our fascinating visitor, yet our entire attractions for this fair one lay not wholly in any landscape beauty. There was lurking in our midst the graceful form of Cupid whose smiles and devotion more ardently thrilled the heart of the damsel from the land of the Stars and Stripes.

With this little prelude we want to tell the story of a very interesting event that took place at Avondale in the Church of the Holy Name on Wednesday, October 26th, when Mr. Brendan Nicholas White, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. White of Catalina, and Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Avondale, and Miss Margaret Theresa Powers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Powers of Philadelphia, U.S.A., were, through the graces and sanctity of the marriage contract made lifetime partners of each other's joys and sorrows.

At the appointed hour of five o'clock in the afternoon a gathering of friends, to the number of sixty as participants in the pleasure of the happy occasion accompanied the bride and groom to the Church of the Holy Name where, as they knelt before the altar, the Rev. Father Shean, P.P., of St. John's, assisted by his nephew, the Rev. Father Kennedy of Avondale, performed the marriage ceremony.

The bride, attired exquisitely in a coat suit was attended by her cousin, Miss Bride O'Brien, as bridesmaid, while Mr. George Kennedy did the honours of best man as attendant on the groom. After the performance of the ceremony the party repaired to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Kennedy where elaborate preparations had been made for the reception of the guests, as well as the celebration of the wedding.

On arrival a sumptuous repast was in readiness, the viands of which amply bespoke the merits of the occasion. Rev. Frs. Shean and Kavanagh presided over the wedding feast and Fr. Shean in a jubilant and humorous manner, proposed, the health of the bride and groom. Mr. White eloquently returned the compliments of the Rev. guest on behalf of himself and Mrs. White. Dancing to the strains of Mr. John Meany's violin and other music was indulged in throughout the night, and the dawn of the morning broke with the departure of the guests to their respective homes after having engaged in good measure in all the amusement which such a meritorious event could provide.

The bride is highly esteemed and admired in Avondale no less than her genial husband who, since taking charge of the branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, has made hosts of friends. The presents to the bride were valuable and accompanied with hearty felicitations. On our part we cordially extend to Mr. and Mrs. White most hearty wishes for a pleasant voyage, pregnant with happiness and bliss, over the matrimonial sea of life.

Avondale, October 30th, 1921.

MURPHY-MacLEAN

Miss Katherine Donald MacLean and Mr. Thomas Murphy were married yesterday morning at 11.30 at the home of the bride's father, Patrick St. Rev. Dr. Power, of the Kirk, was the officiating minister. Excepting Mrs. S. K. Bell, of the Crosbie hotel, none but immediate relatives were present. The wedding was quiet and simple, Miss MacLean being attired in travelling suit.

Miss MacLean will be remembered by thousands in Newfoundland and out of Newfoundland as the pleasant, obliging office clerk of Crosbie hotel, where she had been ever since coming to this country from Canada, some years ago. Her pleasing personality went far toward making the stay of the visitor at the hotel a comfortable one. Newspapermen especially remember her with every good feeling, as in all the time that they were going in and out of the place Miss MacLean was the acme of courtesy. Mrs. Bell, manager of the Crosbie, is warm in her appreciation of the bride, her presence at the wedding testifying to this. To an Advocate reporter she expressed the same regard.

Mr. Murphy, whose home is at Port Good, is a New Yorker by adoption. He is a lumber contractor, just now being in charge of the mills at Benton. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will reside at Benton for a while before proceeding to New York. The Advocate wishes them many happy years.

The Western Union Cable ship, Lord Kelvin, arrived from sea yesterday morning for cable supplies.

DO ALL MY HOUSE WORK

Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly get about.

Cobourg, Ont.—"For many years I have had trouble with my nerves and have been in a general run down condition for some time. I could not do my work half of the time because of the trouble with my monthly sickness. I was told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and advised to try it. It has done me good, and I strongly recommend it. Since I have taken it I have been able to do all my own work, and I also know friends who have found it good. You can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. ELLEN LATTERS, Box 761, Cobourg, Ont.

are near. The fishermen are a no-good class.

Well, perhaps they are. Perhaps they are the dirty cullage they are told they are. Perhaps they are the leaders are the illiterates and cullage of Newfoundland. Perhaps they are the scum of this country, and the others are the gentlemen and ladies.

Fishermen may accept the position. They may admit their inferiority. BUT THERE IS COMING A DAY WHEN THEY WILL DEMAND THEIR RIGHTS, A DAY WHEN THEY WILL NO LONGER SUBMIT TO BE THE HEWERS OF WOOD AND DRAWERS OF WATER, A DAY WHEN IN THEIR IRRESISTIBLE STRENGTH, THEY WILL DEMAND A RECKONING FROM THE MEN WHO BETRAYED THEM TO THEIR ENEMIES AND TRIED TO REDUCE THEM TO POVERTY BY RUINING THE FIRST ATTEMPT IN OUR HISTORY TO IMPROVE THE MAIN INDUSTRY OF THIS COUNTRY. THAT WILL BE A SORRY DAY FOR SOME WE WOT OF.

The first attempt to maintain a fair price for the fishermen's products, and thereby secure them a decent standard of living, may have been defeated with treachery and betrayal.

The next attempt won't suffer that fate.

OBEQUARY
PETER FELTHAM

Again the little settlement of Deer Island has been caused to mourn, this time over the passing of a bright young lad in the person of Peter Chesley Feltham, beloved and only son of Mr. Peter Feltham, who died on Oct. 15th at the early age of 16 years after a very brief illness. Peter was a bright boy and was just entering into manhood with a bright and promising future before him. But God took him from this world of toil and care, to be with Himself in that land which is fairer than day. May He who has promised to share our sorrows and not lay on us any more than we are able to bear comfort and cheer the aged father in this, his hour of bereavement.

Darling Peter thou hast left us, Your sweet face we'll see no more. Till we meet thee up in heaven, On that bright and happy shore.

No good-byes shall there be spoken, Death no more our joys shall part, No more thought of separation, Still arise within the heart.

Get This Safety First
Habit Right

The Motor Association has announced its intention in inaugurating a "Safety First" campaign. This is a good idea and when it is backed by the City Council there is every hope for its success.

For a start, some means must be taken to getting pedestrians to adopt some idea of "Safety First" for themselves. No amount of effort on the part of the Motor Association, the Municipal Council or the police force can avail unless citizens generally enter into the spirit of the thing and get down to some definite plan of crossing streets, some plan which will ensure safety in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred. In other words pedestrians must cultivate some safety first habit and here is one which we would suggest to begin with. It is as simple as it is effective. When crossing a street pedestrians should, before stepping off the sidewalk, look to the right to see that no car is coming in that direction on the side of the street which they are about to leave. When they get to the centre of the street they should look to the left to see whether or not a car is approaching on the side of the street towards which they are going. By this means it will be next to impossible for persons crossing streets to be run down by passing motor cars. As is well known, all cars and other vehicles must at all times keep to the left and therefore when one is about to cross a street he must at all times look for an approaching car, on the same side as that on which he is standing, to his right.

The practice of this simple habit will be found one of the most effective means which pedestrians can employ for their own safety, and in their campaign the Motor Association should boost the idea to the limit.

At present there are many things called for under traffic regulations that motor car drivers do not heed at all times, principal among these being the sounding of horns before turning corners.

It is true that during the busy hours of the day this rule is pretty generally observed, but motorists are too prone to take it for granted, when spinning around corners during hours of the night when very few are ahead, that there is no necessity of sounding a horn. The necessity for so doing is always present; it should be done invariably and no chances should be taken.

And the plan which might be adopted with good effect is that of having certain fixed points of crossing the principal streets and to have traffic officers see to it that pedestrians cross at these points.

EXPRESS WAS DELAYED

TRIED TO GET MEIGLE

A REFORMATORY

It has often been said that a reformatory is badly wanted in this country. Boys and girls for want of any other place to send them have been sent to the penitentiary when if there was a proper place to send them they would in time see the error of their ways and once more become decent members of society. Steps are at last being taken to establish such an institution and everyone will agree that it is about time.

SUSU LOST ANCHOR

Messrs. Crosbie & Co. received word yesterday that the S.S. Susu left Valleyfield Tuesday night going north. It is believed the Susu sheltered at this port out of the storm, and the captain reports the ship had a very trying time and lost an anchor and 30 fathoms of chain.

The G. S. Arras, captain Barkhouse, left yesterday for the Newfoundland coast taking Canadian officials, who are to inspect the stations at Cape Race and other points in the Ancient Colony, says the Halifax Herald.
